MARKET INTELLIGENCE

Nigeria has seen momentum build in the oil and gas sector since the turn of the year, following President Bola Tinubu's signing of the landmark Deep Offshore Oil and Gas Projects Incentives (Tax Remission) Order 2026. This reform is expected to attract tens of billions of dollars of investment into the oil and gas sector and enable stalled projects to progress towards a final investment decision. This could see the likes of the Preowei, Ntokon and Owowo Subsea Tiebacks, and the Bonga Southwest Development all advance in the next 12 months.

Activity is ramping up, and we have recently seen the Ima Gas Field and Usan Oil Field Redevelopment reach a final investment decision, with the successful contractors for the former set to be announced imminently. We have also seen the release of tender documents for the $10 billion plus Etan & Zabazaba Oil fields.

The announcement of the new Order has given operators the confidence to invest, and with multiple projects set to be underway, Nigeria will provide significant opportunities for the supply chain now and in the future.
