Market Intelligence

The total estimated CAPEX for energy projects under development in the Middle East is approximately $1.23 trillion, covering all energy sectors.

The upstream sector leads with $400.11 billion allocated to 232 projects, followed by the downstream sector with $266.3 billion across 129 projects. Despite its strong reliance on the oil and gas industry, the region is increasingly focusing on clean energy and energy transition, with $118.9 billion invested in 155 renewable energy projects and $106 billion in energy transition initiatives. Saudi Arabia ranks second in the region with $243 billion invested in 101 projects, while the UAE is third with $221.4 billion allocated to 136 projects.
